

University of Delaware Press, general questions

1. Can I receive a discount on a book from the University of Delaware Press?

Yes! You can use the conference code RRSA26 for 30% off plus free U.S. shipping when you order online; simply enter the discount code at checkout.

2. What is the best way to receive information on new and forthcoming publications from the University of Delaware Press, or otherwise stay up-to-date on news from the Press?

To stay up-to-date on news from the University of Delaware Press, connect with us on LinkedIn. We post semi-regularly, and share all relevant news and updates on that platform.

The University Delaware Press mails a variety of catalogs, postcards, and brochures to help inform our valued customers of new books and initiatives. If you would like to be included in our mailings, please send an email to Brice Hammack at Rutgers University Press (bhammack@rutgers.edu) and indicate your areas of interest.

Sign up here to receive alerts and special offers on our books. You will have the choice of signing up for specific subject areas—including Literary Studies, Theatre and Performance Studies, and Women’s Studies, among others.

If you sign up, you will receive periodic email messages alerting you to new books, special events, special discount offers, and more.*

* Please note that email may contain information about books from the University of Delaware Press as well as our production and distribution partner, Rutgers University Press and Bucknell University Press and Templeton Press, also distributed worldwide by Rutgers University Press.

3. Do you have any books on [X] subject matter?

On the University of Delaware Press website, you can browse books by series or simply use the search bar to help locate titles in which you may be interested. On the University of Delaware Press’s sub-site on the main Rutgers University Press website, you can browse books by subject area as well as series and view books related to a specific title.

University of Delaware Press, prospective author / publishing question(s)

1. I am a scholar working on a manuscript. Is the University of Delaware Press the right home for my book?

Almost all of the information a prospective author could need is available on the University of Delaware Press’s website. You can visit our Submissions Guidelines page for more detailed information concerning proposal requirements and evaluation criteria.

University of Delaware Press, educator question(s)

1. How do I request a desk or exam copy of a University of Delaware Press book (and what is the difference between a desk and an exam copy)?

A desk copy of a book is for instructors who have adopted the book for a class; an exam copy of a book is for instructors who are considering adopting the book in a class. You can request either a desk or exam copy by visiting the Educators page on the University of Delaware Press's RUP sub-site, filling out the request form on any individual book page, or by emailing Publishing Coordinator Josephine Chaet (chaetjos@udel.edu).

University of Delaware Press, media and review question(s)

1. How do I request a review copy of a University of Delaware Press book?

If you would like to review one of the University of Delaware Press's titles for a newspaper, magazine, journal, and other media outlet, or television and radio program with legitimate author interview formats, please visit the Review Copy Information page on the University of Delaware Press's RUP sub-site or email Publishing Coordinator Josephine Chaet (chaetjos@udel.edu).

If you have any other questions that have not been addressed in this FAQ document, please contact the University of Delaware Press by emailing ud-press@udel.edu.